From the day that a young man starts out to seek his first position to the end of his business life, his health has a world to do with his success. When a young man applies to a business man for a position, his personal appearance has a deal to do with the outcome. "Personal appearance" does not mean dress alone. It does not mean exterior cleanliness alone. A young man may be clean, so far as soap and water will make him, but be disfigured by unsightly pimples, eruptions and ulcerations on the skin. These are due to impurities in the blood. The blood becomes impure because it is improperly nourished. Instead of receiving the life-giving elements of the food, it receives the foul emanations of indigestion, biliousness and costiveness. The reason that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best remedy for disorders of this description is that it goes right to first causes. It gives a man an appetite "like a horse." It facilitates the flow of digestive juices. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, and makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect. It invigorates the liver. It purifies and enriches the blood. It makes the muscles strong and active. It tones and steadies the nerves. It makes a young man look as he should—strong of body, alert of brain and clean and wholesome of skin. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

An Observing Puppy.

A rector writes from Houlton, England, to The Spectator to record an instance of a very high order of intelligence in an animal, of a power of reasoning as distinct from any acquired instinct:

"I have a bullpup, aged 10 months, and a bulldog 4 years old, both of which live in the house and are great pets. A short time ago my wife was ill, and though the older dog, owing to his quiet and sedate way, was allowed to enter her room, the puppy was never admitted. The nurse could always tell which dog was at the door, because the older dog gave one single and gentle scratch and then remained quiet, while the puppy scratched violently and frequently and whined. The puppy apparently could not understand why she was not admitted, and felt her exclusion sorely.

"One day she scratched furiously as usual. No notice was taken. Presently she was heard going flop-flop down stairs. In a few minutes the single gentle scratch of the old dog was heard, the door was opened, and there were both dogs, and, strange to say, from that time the puppy so imitated the scratch of the other dog that it was impossible to tell which was at the door. Undoubtedly the puppy went and asked the old dog to show her how he gained admission. How else can one explain the fact?"

Lighting a Cigar.

According to an observant Philadelphian whose business is to sell cigars, the careless smoker is largely responsible for the big dividends match manufacturers enjoy.

"Just watch it any time," he remarked a few days ago, "and see if I am not correct. The average smoker of a cigar will talk or think regardless of his weed until it goes out. Then he will suddenly discover the absence of the fire which makes a cigar enjoyable. Out from his pocket comes a match, and in an instant it has been struck and the lighted lucifer placed against the cigar end.

"In his eagerness to get another light, however, the smoker has, in nine cases out of ten, forgotten to knock the ashes off his weed. As a result the flame from the match fails to penetrate the ash heap, and the match flame doesn't cut any figure. I've seen it so many times that I don't laugh at it any more, but it must be funny to casual onlookers. After this when your cigars go out before they are consumed be sure and knock the ashes off before trying to relight them. Then you will stand a fair chance of securing another light and at the same time put a kink in the profits of the matchmakers."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Mme. Patti's Substitute.

To some persons a poor singer may be better than no singer at all, but the least musical person cannot fail to perceive the irony of the situation described below:

Once when traveling in the north of Ireland, an Englishman of letters chanced upon a small town which, to his surprise, he found extensively filled with announcements of a concert at which Mme. Patti was to appear.

The price of admission to the back of the hall being the extremely moderate one of threepence, he hastened to secure a seat. After a long interval of waiting, the manager stepped forward, remarking:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I regret to say that Mme. Patti is unable to appear tonight. In order, however, to save you from disappointment, I have arranged that Miss Arabella Jones of our town of Ballyslackguthery shall favor you with a song!"—Youth's Companion.

A Raise in Salary.

Some years ago Collis P. Huntington's private secretary, Mr. Miles, asked for an increase of salary. "Do you need any more money?" asked Mr. Huntington thoughtfully. "No, sir, I don't exactly need it," replied Mr. Miles, "but still, I'd be glad to be getting a little more."

"Ah—hum—m—m," mused his employer. "Can you get along without the advance for the present?" "Oh, yes," answered the secretary, "I guess so," and the matter was dropped.

A couple of years later a new boy appeared at the Miles home, and the secretary thought the time propitious to renew the application. "Why, my dear Mr.," said Mr. Huntington when he heard him through, "I raised your salary when you asked me before."

"I never heard anything about it," said the secretary in amazement. "Probably not," returned Mr. Huntington. "In fact, I used that money to buy a piece of property for you. I'd just let it stand for awhile if I were you."

Mr. Miles thanked him warmly and retired somewhat mystified. Shortly after Mr. Huntington called him into his private office. "By the way, Miles," he said, "I have sold that real estate of yours at a pretty good advance. Here is the check."

The amount was $50,000. The property was part of a large section purchased by the railway king as an investment for his wife.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Live Bird on her Hat.

One Chicago girl's hat made a sensation in the women's luncheon at the Auditorium yesterday. She came in from Michigan avenue and stopped for a moment in the parlor. While there she noticed a young sparrow flutter in through the open window and wheel once or twice around the room. She felt it brush against her hat in its flight, but thought no more of it and passed on into the luncheon. She had picked up the bill of fare and was reading it when she felt that some one was watching her, and, glancing around, she discovered that she was a focusing point for all the eyes in the immediate vicinity.

Of course she blushed and colored up and began to wonder at the cause of the people's interest. Just then the waiter, who had been hovering around, noticed her confusion and, bending down, whispered, "Pahdon me, miss, but dah's a live buid on yo' hat."

And then instead of going into hysterics she calmly said: "Thank you. Will you please shoo it off?"

And the waiter "shooed" the sparrow toward a nearby window, while the owner of the hat fixed it on straight and proceeded to order her luncheon.—Chicago News.

Good He Didn't Accept.

During the second Dreyfus court martial, M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, ex-president of the civil section of the court de cassation, who was bitter against the accused captain, received a very polite letter dated from the Chateau de Prefargier, near Neuchatel, in Switzerland, and signed, "A de Prefargier," praising him for his efforts in the Dreyfus case and inviting him to come and stay at the writer's residence.

M. de Beaurepaire replied in his usual flowery style, saying he would continue the struggle as long as he had strength, and that he would remain at the breach like a valiant soldier to set an example of duty to God and the fatherland, even should he stand alone. He did not positively decline the invitation, holding out hopes that some day he might be free to accept it.

The Chateau de Prefargier is the inmate asylum for Neuchatel.—St. Paul's Budget.

Man's Million Years.

According to the conclusions of Mr. A. H. Keane, a well known English ethnologist, the first creatures that could properly be called men appeared on the earth in what geologists know as the Pliocene period, somewhere about a million years ago. The precursor of man, Mr. Keane thinks, was some such apelike creature as the Pithecanthropus erectus, discovered by Dr. Dubois in Java a few years ago. Four varieties of men were developed: Homo ethiopicus in Africa south of the equator, Homo mongolicus in central Asia, Homo americanus in the new world and Homo caucasicus in northern Africa. From these the existing races are descended.

Deceptive Covers.

It is safest, in London secondhand bookstalls at least, to look into a book before buying it. A London bookseller has confessed in court that he and others had the habit of "buying up old books and sticking covers on 'em." It appears that the plaintiff had found on buying "Nicholas Nickleby" and "Oliver Twist" that there was never a word about Nicholas and Oliver in them.

How He Got It.

"I," said the gruff old merchant to the young man who wanted to go away for a week, "have worked here for 22 years without a vacation."

"Yes, I know it. That's why I want to get away. But for the horrible example you present I might be willing to work on and on without a—"

Let it suffice to say that he got his vacation.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Impressed.

"Isn't it awe inspiring," said the youth with tendencies toward the sublime, "to think of this earth rushing forward on its track, superior to all human direction and beyond all restraint?" "Yes," answered the fair girl softly after a long pause. "It makes me think of my new automobile."—Washington Star.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY PRINCIPLES.

The Democratic party had its origin in the early time of the republic when the people were fully imbued with political ideas as received in a direct way from the patriots of the revolution and the founders of the government.

The people, at the time the party was given form, were anxious to have a party that would represent and maintain the form of government that had received its outlines and principles as set forth in the Declaration of Independence and in the constitution of the United States.

The principles of the party were intended to fully represent and declare the ideas of its founders, which were the ideas of the revolutionary fathers respecting the simplicity of republican institutions.

Among the principles included by its founders were the maintenance of the rights of the states against federal usurpation upon the principle that the federal government was the creature of the states, and to sustain more fully the principle of state rights as it was termed, the rule requiring a strict construction of the federal constitution was included as a principle of the party, and generally there was included as a principle the maintenance of the rights of state and federal governments.

It will be understood from the above statement of principles that the differences in foundation principles between the Republican and Democratic parties is radical. The principles of the Democratic party are the principles represented by our theory of government and it has continued to maintain them as given by our patriot fathers.

The doctrine of state rights during the war was ridiculed, but not destroyed. The cause of the unpopularity of the doctrine had its origin in a claim made by a small number of Democrats in the South that the doctrine of state rights included a right reserved to a state to secede from the federal union, which claim of right was not at any time admitted or recognized by the party, but was at the time when the claim was made, and even has been since that time, rejected by the party.

The claim was first made by Mr. Calhoun and others in South Carolina at an early period, and had for its origin the slavery question.

The doctrine of State rights, as declared by the party, when applied, is and will be conservation of liberty to the people, when our federal system will have ceased to give protection to liberty. The framers of our federal system fully understood that the principles that give liberty would be sustained by the protection of the reserved rights of the States against federal corruption and usurpation.

The men who built our government and created the science contained in its system were the men who furnished principles to the party. The originators and builders of our government system knew that the doctrine of State rights when applied would protect the people of the states in their right to liberty, that cost the privations of a seven years' war and the best blood of the colonies.

The principles, a short outline of which is above given, caused the writer, whose father was a whig, to register his first vote by depositing a Democratic ballot. Many young men, who are thoroughly American and who have fine natural and acquired abilities, have not informed themselves upon the causes that make party divisions or upon the principles represented by party alignment and for that reason are not in a position to determine upon the Americanism and monarchism represented by the political parties.

The time is upon us when the principles represented by the Revolution and that were taught by the founders of our government system will have to be brought to the political front to maintain the purity of American government principles against threatened encroachments upon the rights of the people through radical changes in policy that will require changes in our theory of government. When our theory of government is changed the distance from theory to fact is short.

The rush and tumble to get money in the last thirty years has caused departures from government principles. Every means that could be applied under the law has been used and used in many particulars in the most oppressive manner against the people. The law of the land has been evaded in letter and spirit by the creation of trusts to get money by taking from the people more than the value of the products sold. This is done by destroying competition and crushing the individual rights of the individual citizen, who is engaged in the business that the trust has selected as its own, which condition representing business interests will not cease till it is reached by the authority of law as oppression of the people will continue to increase by the application of new and more oppressive means by the money combines.

To whom can the people go when government is directed by the money power? Except, it may be, to themselves as they possess the power to relieve if they will exercise it.

The government is in the same business that the trusts are engaged in carrying forward; the difference being in form and under the circumstances present is it possible to obtain relief?

The people will have to take care of themselves as it is quite evident that oppression will continue till they have concluded to govern and apply the principles upon which our government is founded, which principles include the protection of the individual citizen in all his individual rights, and every assault there is made upon them is in opposition to the theory of American government, which is to protect the individual and secure him against oppression in all of its forms.

A few days ago Prime Minister Salisbury at a banquet given by the Mayor of London, said it was gratifying to England to receive such evidences of the friendship of the American people at this time as England is receiving. Ambassador Choate at a dinner given by the Sir Walter Scott Club at Edinburgh made a speech in which he made very complimentary remarks about the relations existing between the Americans and English, giving those present to understand that America is standing by England in the Transvaal war, which remarks were no doubt intended as notice to the world of America's position.

The Gazette is of the opinion that the Republican party is on top, which is a very good place to be, provided the place is cared for as it should be by those in charge.

THE COMMITTEES GET DOWN TO BUSINESS

From The Reports They Made Yesterday

the Reception to Nevada Troopers

Promises to Be a Rattling

Big Success.

All sub-committee men and women are working like Trojans preparing to give the troopers a reception which will be an honor to the State.

They met in the office of Frank H. Norcross yesterday and reported progress as follows:

Parade—There have been no developments since their report was published. The indications are that all the civic and military organizations invited to participate will be very largely represented.

Music—Hasting's band has agreed to turn out in the parade, giving their services without money and without price. The University cadet band has also proffered its services for the parade and pavilion exercises. Miss Hollingsworth's string band will furnish music for the ball. The committee also reported that it was intimated to them that bands from Carson, Virginia and the Indian school would attend. A glee club is also expected to be at the train and assist the bands in rendering patriotic airs when the troopers arrive.

Invitation and program—An invitation has been extended to all and several the citizens of Nevada to attend and participate in the jollification. The Governor has been requested to invite all the militia organizations to be present. It is thought that two companies from Virginia and one from Carson will be here.

Banquet and ball—The banquet will be given in the lower floor of the pavilion at 6 o'clock. The volunteers and Grand Army men will be admitted free as will also be specially invited guests. The less fortunate will be expected to pay one dollar a plate. This ticket will also admit them to the ball. The banquet will be a very delectable affair as it is now planned.

Toasts will be responded to by people from all parts of the State. Dr. Stubbs will officiate as toastmaster.

Ball—All who do not hold banquet tickets or special invitations will be charged fifty cents admission to the ball. Tickets will be placed on sale for both banquet and ball in a few days and only the capacity of the building will be sold.

Transportation—An effort is being made to secure half rates or less on the various railroads for this occasion. The attendance promises to be very large if concessions are made by the companies that it will be to their interest to do. It is expected that the Virginia & Truckee people will, with their usual liberality, grant an exceptionally low rate to enable a big crowd to come from Carson and Virginia.

The troopers will be transported from San Francisco at no cost to themselves, an appropriation having been made for that purpose. The Southern Pacific granted them very liberal rates, and will give them excellent accommodations.

Decoration—The decorations promise to be most elaborate. A committee is interviewing all the business men and property owners along the line of march and a universal reply is: "We will decorate handsomely." An appropriation of $40 has been made to the committee for special street decorations.

It was decided at the meeting yesterday to call upon the people to turn out en masse and convoy the boys in triumph from the train to a hotel where they will be breakfasted.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction, we feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks.—Respectfully, Mrs. S. WE CERTAINLY OBJECT TO THIS SCHEME

Not a Fair Shake to the Fellow Who Is Patriotic but Broke.

We were informed yesterday by the committee that is looking after the reception affair that if we want to go in and put our brave soldier boys on the back we must put up four bits for this privilege.

We object! If we want to eat turkey we will willingly pay the dollar asked. That is all right.

But we have been holding an indignation meeting with ourselves ever since we learned that only the fellow with silver in his vest can enter into the festivities of the occasion. We have been waiting a year and a half for the chance to tell the boys how we honor them but we don't want to be taxed for the privilege.

The boys don't want it either. They are not a diplomatic legation full of flummery and perummery. They do not want to be hovered over by low cut vests and corsages, but they want the hearty handshakes and congratulation of the fellows they used to know and who used to associate with them in the good old days "befo' de wa'."

WILLIAMS RETAINS HIS MINING CLAIMS

E. R. Dodge Loses His Suit for Interest in Olinghouse Property.

Judge Curlier's long awaited decision in the case of Dodge vs. Williams was rendered yesterday morning. This case was brought to recover a title to a one-half interest in claims in Olinghouse canyon known as the Cabin and the Gold Ledge.

The Judge decided the action in favor of the defendant, holding that Dodge could not make good his claim to having performed the specific work promised in the contract, not having begun suit or suits to quiet title to the Williams claims.

His honor also held that the wording of certain portions of the contract was meaningless and ungrammatical when contrasted with the contract as a whole.

Yon Yonson.

Easily the best of all the Swedish dialect plays that the public has seen is the favorite comedy-drama, "Yon Yonson," which comes to McKiesick's Opera House Wednesday night next, under the direction of Thall and Kennedy.

The story of the play is a good one, well knit together, and is well told. Amos Jennings appropriates a patent belonging to his dead pardner and adopts his daughter, setting her brother adrift among a Swedish community in a sparsely settled portion of Minnesota. The boy grows up in ignorance of his birth.

Time goes on and Jennings takes a new pardner, George Halloway. Halloway knows all about the patent transaction, and, using that as a lever, forces Jennings into a land scheme, by the means of which he intends to swindle an English tourist. Jennings takes the Englishman to see the land, and there supposes that he has murdered him.

Halloway accuses Jennings of the crime, but the Englishman turns up and in the end marries Jennings' adopted daughter, and Yon Yonson, the hero of the play, turns out to be her brother.

Would Not Suffer so Again for Fifty Times Its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. WILSON, Liverman, Burgettstown, Washington Co., Pa. Blue Bows to Crimson—Stanford Conquers the Nevada Talent to the Tune of Seventeen to Five.

Special to Journal.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 11.—The blue of Nevada was lowered before the crimson of Stanford to-day.

The sturdy boys from the mountains were outwighed by their rivals, but there the advantage ceased. In discipline, head work and pluck there was nothing to denote the outcome until the tale was told.

Nevada's defeat was certainly not due to lack of encouragement, for not only were the bleachers impartial in their applause, but Gile and half the Rooters' club were there with a dozen or more new yells.

Among the spectators were a number of Nevadans from San Francisco and a squad of blue coats from Linscott's troop.

The grounds were wet and slippery; the turf gridiron being something new to the sagebrush team.

Game was called at 2:40. Following was the lineup of the Nevada team: Hunter, center; Keddle, right guard; Carman, left guard; Ohlson, right tackle;

Substitutes—Brule, C. Smith, Sunderland, Leadbetter.

The first half was a zigzag struggle, honors even. Each side scored but Stanford gained a point by a successful goal kick, Keddle missing for Nevada. Our touchdown was made by Hayes, who outwitted the enemy by a long fake run around left.

Score, first half—Nevada 5, Stanford 6.

In the second half Stanford adopted bucking tactics, breaking repeatedly through Nevada's line. By superior weight the U. N. team was borne back repeatedly into the dangerous territory.

Two long runs by Fischer and Smith won the day for the Californians. Murphy failed to kick a goal.

Score, second half—Nevada 0, Stanford 11.

The visitors were given a rousing reception after the game. In fact their treatment by their hosts has been splendid.

The team will remain at Palo Alto until Wednesday practicing on the turf. Wednesday afternoon they will battle with the University of California varsity eleven on the Berkeley grounds.

EXCELS IN

A Famous Distillery.
The poor receive all the profits of one of the most famous distilleries in the world, that which is connected with the monastery of St. Bruno, in the department of Dauphine, which is better known as La Grande Char-treuse. The distillery itself is a considerable distance from the monastery, but it stands on land belonging to the order, although the French government has a claim over it.
The monks of St. Bruno, although they are sworn to poverty, have control of an industry which produces about $150,000 a year profit. Of this one-third goes as a contribution to the fund known as Peter's pence. Another portion is devoted to the maintenance of hospitals, and the remainder is devoted to subsidizing poor churches throughout France and to the personal relief of poor applicants, without distinction of church or creed. It is interesting to note that those who have control of this lucrative business are expressly forbidden by their vows to carry on a trade which could result in a profit to themselves.
Many attempts have been made to purchase the business, one notably by the Rothschilds, but all have failed, because the heads of the order consider that they are not justified in selling the business to a firm that would make a personal profit by it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Know When They Have Enough.
The llama, that docile animal which was the beast of burden in Peru in prehistoric times and played the part that was assigned to his cousin, the camel, in Egypt and Arabia, is still seen in large numbers in the mountain districts, but he cannot live in the warmer latitudes along the coast. He is docile, enduring and sure footed. He can go a long time without water and food and chews the cud of contentment when other animals are in distress because of the temperature of the rarefied atmosphere found in the Andean plateaus.
A llama will carry 100 pounds and no more, and if you add an ounce to his load he will lie down and wait until it is taken off. He knows when he has enough, and there is no use in trying to argue with him. The native Indians have learned this by the experience of generations, and when a llama lies down they immediately unstrap and diminish his burden without making any fuss about it. Then, when he is satisfied that he has been given no more than his share, he climbs on to his hoofs again and follows the mountain trail for days and weeks at a time without murmuring or slipping or forgetting his good manners.—Chicago Record.

A Rather Novel Complaint.
An English traveler once met a companion, sitting in a state of the most woeful despair and apparently near the last agonies, by the side of one of the mountain lakes of Switzerland. He inquired the cause of his sufferings.
"Oh," said the latter, "I was very hot and thirsty and took a large draft of the clear water of the lake and then sat down on this stone to consult my guidebook. To my astonishment, I found that the water of this lake is very poisonous! Oh, I am a gone man
—I feel it running all over me. I have only a few minutes to live! Remember me to!"
"Let me see the guidebook," said his friend. Turning to the passage, he found, "L'eau du lac est bien poisonneuse" ("The water of this lake abounds in fish").
"Is that the meaning of it?"
"Certainly!"
The dying man looked up with a radiant countenance. "What would have become of you," said his friend, "if I had not met you?"
"I should have died of imperfect knowledge of the French language."

One Too Many For the Dean.
A well known dean of Norwich tells the following good story against himself.
Some few weeks ago he came to a stille in a field which was occupied by a farm lad, who was eating his bread and bacon lunch.
The boy made no attempt to allow his reverence to pass, so was duly lectured for his lack of manners.
"You seem, my lad, to be better fed than taught."
"Very like," answered the lad, slicing off a piece of bacon, "for ye teaches OI, but OI feeds meself."—London Answers.

How He Got Exercise.
Lord Palmerston used a clever expedient for coercing himself into a little regular daily exercise.
It was his custom when in government positions to have his inkstand placed upon a table several yards away from the desk at which he worked, so that he had to walk several paces for each dip of ink.
He attributed his maintenance of sturdy health and jaunty manner under the trying conditions of office routine to this simple practice, as also his habit of performing all work standing.

Ready Answer.
"Papa, what is the meaning of the word 'candelabra'?" asked Sammy Snaggs, who was doing his "home work."
"That's easy, Sammy," replied Mr.
Snaggs. "The word explains itself. A candy laborer is a workman in a candy factory."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

This old world at best is only an an-nihil and life a sort of Plutonian blacksmith, that, with varying blows, strikes us into form. The blow that hurts us most may shape us best.
I never listen to calumnies, because if they are untrue I run the risk of being deceived, and if they are true, of hating people not worth thinking about.—Montesquieu.

His View of It.
A little boy had been sent to the dairy to get some eggs, and on his way back he dropped the basket containing them.
"How many did you break?" asked his mother.
"Oh, I didn't break any," he replied,
"but the shells came off some of them."
